

Colorful tulips in profusion are a springtime favorite in Colonial Williamsburg. Brought to America from Holland, tulips were popular flowers that were often depicted in ceramics, textiles, and other decorative arts objects in the eighteenth century.

© 1997 by The Colonial Williamsburg Foundation

The Colonial Williamsburg Foundation

